How is your agency storing and sharing sensitive and confidential data internally and externally?

Use Case

Government agencies handle a wide range of highly confidential and PROTECTED-level information that must be shared securely and efficiently between teams, departments, and external stakeholders. These include:

- Operational briefs
- Digital evidence
- Highly sensitive MOUs
- Briefs of evidence
- eDiscovery/disclosure information
- Affidavits
- Subpoenas
- Operational reporting
- Sensitive supply chain documentation
- Vendor agreements
- Technology contracts

Are you concerned that the way you store and share sensitive data is NOT 100% secure and compliant?

8 vital data security questions to ask your team

1. How comfortable are you with the security of your data sharing practices (e.g., email, messaging, USBs, hard drives and video conferencing)?
2. Who (which team member agency) is hosting the data on their server(s)?
3. Who controls access to the hosting server(s)?
4. Are there adequate internal and external controls, e.g., physical security in place for the hosting servers?
5. Does the server or database administrator have access to sensitive and confidential data?
6. Are there controls in place to limit unauthorised disclosure of certain data to cross-functional team members due to privacy regulations?
7. Do you have the ability to view a comprehensive audit trail on every piece of data uploaded and shared by the team?
8. Do your current information sharing practices satisfy for Data Sovereignty?

If you are concerned about any of the answers to the above questions, your data may not be as safe as you need it to be.

It may be time to find a new solution.
